

What would you do with a half a trillion dollars?

In a recent article in Financial Advisor, Ted Knutson wrote that the total cost of cyber-crime worldwide in 2016 will approach half a trillion dollars. He goes on to cite statistics that there have been 3 records for every man, woman and child in the US pilfered over the last 10 years.

There are real, measurable costs and consequences to businesses that fall victim to Cyber crime. Are you able to be resilient and quickly respond to an attack, thus limiting your damage?

Think about it...is it worth your time to try to limit the losses by 75%(or better)?

I know I think so.
